MISCELLANEOUS READING. AN EYE TO THE MAIN CHANCE.

In one of the care of the New York and Erie Railway, on a seat two or three "removes" from me, sat a smart, Yankee looking woman, with a dashing new silk gown, and a new bonnet set jauntily upon her head, and beside her, looking out of the window, nia, on Saturday, the 10th day of July, 1858, at and every now and then thrusting out his

> The woman watched him with every appearance of anxiety, and at last said to him. "Don't you see that handbill there, telling you not to put your arm and head out of the car window?"

> The man made no reply, save to fix upon the speaker a pair of pale, watery blue eyes; and presently out went his head again and just as the cars were passing a wooden bridge.

The lady started back, and once more ex-"Do you understand English?"

"Yaw-yaw!" "Then why don't you keep your head out of the window? Do you want to get killed?' No response; and a fourth time he narrowly escaped collision with some passing object.

The woman could stand it no longer. "Why don't you keep your head out of the window? The next thing you know your head will be smashed to a jelly and I shall have your brains all over me-that is, if you have got any-and I don't much believe you have.

We had all mistaken the object of the woman's solicitude, which at first seemed to be a tender regard for the safety of her fellow passenger, but when the true motive leaked out coupled with so very equivocal a compliment to his intelligence, a laugh was heard in the car that drowned the roaring of the wheels.
